Resume for H. David Tuggle

Dave Tuggle has a Ph.D. in Anthropology from the University of Arizona. He has worked in Hawai'i for over 30 years, with experience that includes (1) research in the archaeology, history, historical ethnography; and archaeo-astronomy of the islands (2) cultural resource management, including numerous projects involving state and federal laws; and (3) interpretive planning. He has also conducted archaeological research in Arizona, New York, Mexico, Palau, Guam, Saipan, Tinian, and the Philippines.

In Hawai'i Dave Tuggle has carried out field and archival research on seven of the eight main islands. These projects have variously involved inventory, survey, excavation, and interpretive planning. All projects have included extensive background research in archives and other historical records of Hawai'i, and many have included work with native Hawaiian individuals and organizations. He has written numerous reports, articles, and reviews concerning the archaeology and pre-Contact history of Hawai'i, and has been a member of many organizations in Hawai'i, including the Hawai'i Historic Places Review Board.
